What is stem cell nutrition?

Stem cell nutrition is the process of fueling the body with specific nutritional supplements in such a way that will promote the NATURAL migration (exiting from a specific area of the body and traveling to another part of the body) of the body's own unassigned adult stem cells, specifically from the bone marrow to the rest of the body and increasing the overall stem cell count within the body.

More details about Stem Cell Migration and Assignment

As we age, our bodies slow in the production and release of unassigned adult stem cells. And, adult stem cells are the basis for our entire system! They are the starting cells which, when needed will become one cell or another; they start out as "unassigned" cells in the bone marrow and are released when triggered or needed to migrate to another part of the body to transform into a specific type of cell, like skin, hair, nails, kidney, brain etc. The goal of stem cell nutrition is to boost and encourage our bodies to keep up stem cell production and release those cells in high numbers despite our age. This in turn will allow our bodies to recover faster when hurt, heal at a normal rate and greatly reduces the risk of developing age related diseases.†

It is our vision to help society live life virtually disease free. We consider ourselves humble caretakers of the precious gifts of Mother Nature. We aspire to empower and educate those seeking whole-body protection from disease, fueling their inspiration to lead a pro-active, healthy and rejuvenated lifestyle.
